A short, simple look at the truth about good health and Chiropractic.

preface

This booklet has been prepared to briefly acquaint the new Chiropractic patient with the truth about the human body, chemicals, health and Chiropractic. Read it carefully.

While it will answer most questions about this vital subject, many questions will remain. It is suggested that after thoroughly reading this booklet you contact your Chiropractor with regard to any specifics.

forward

If you were to live a healthy life, all your life; never being ill or having an operation; never being vaccinated, inoculated, medicined, drugged, pilled, powdered or portioned; and at the age of 135 died in your sleep, you would be looked upon as a freak of nature.

If, however, you were to live with sickness, as most people do, having to take medicines and drugs for your many ills throughout your life; if you were to have your tonsils removed at age 6, your appendix at the age of 16, your gall bladder at the age of 56, a hernia or two, hemorrhoid operations, etc.; and then pass away at the age of 66 because of liver failure, you would have been considered to have led a normal, natural life.....just like everyone else.

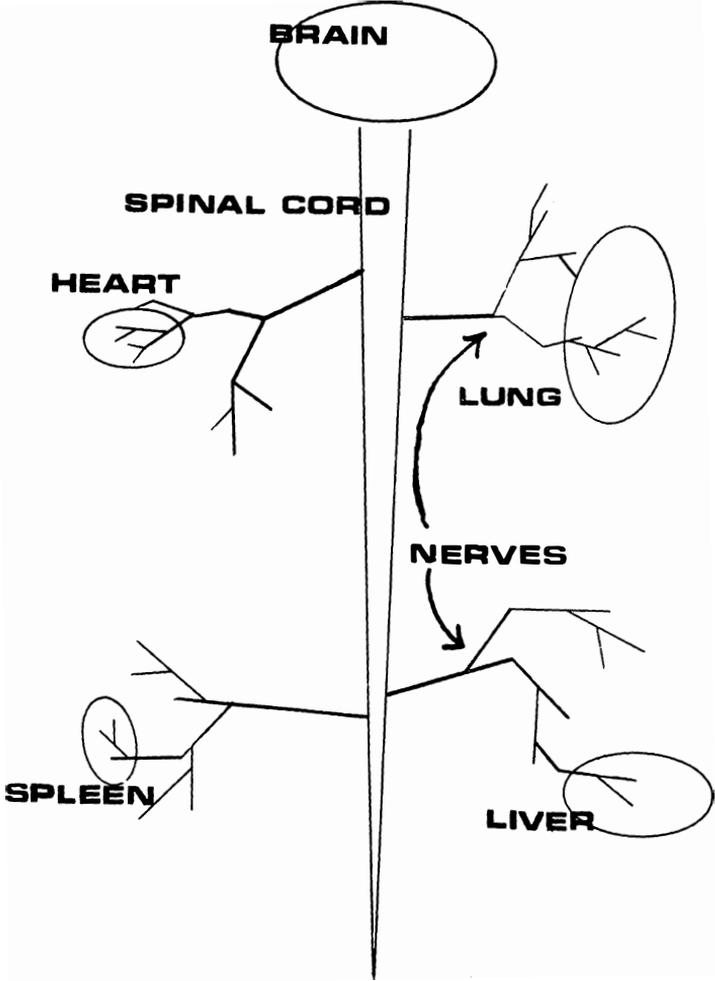

Essentially, this is how most people look at life. We are led to believe, therefore, that sickness is normal and natural and that good health is an accidental freak of nature.

Can you believe this?

should beat. When you cut your finger you don't have to tell your prothrombin to go to work to heal the cut. (You probably didn't even know you had any).

If you step outside in winter to a temperature of ten below zero, your body has to raise the temperature of the air you breathe over 100 degrees before it reached your lungs. Your body can adapt to almost any circumstance, but only if it is perfectly coordinated and if every part is working properly.

Nature has taken these jobs out of your thinking mind and put them into what your Chiropractor calls your INNATE (inborn) mind. This is the same wisdom that took two tiny cells and created a living, walking, talking, thinking human being. It is 100% infallible; cannot make a mistake; always knows what to do in every instance to maintain a properly working, perfectly coordinated body.

what does a physician do?

The practice of medicine can be broken down into two categories. The first is the treatment of symptoms. This speaks for itself. Never mind where the symptoms are coming from, just stop them with a chemical and make the patient think he's well.

EXAMPLE: When you take an aspirin to relieve a headache what does the aspirin really do?

1. aspirin cures the headache.
2. aspirin covers up the symptom.

The obvious answer is No. 2.

The second category is the treatment of disease. They try to determine which cells are not functioning properly, and do one of four things:

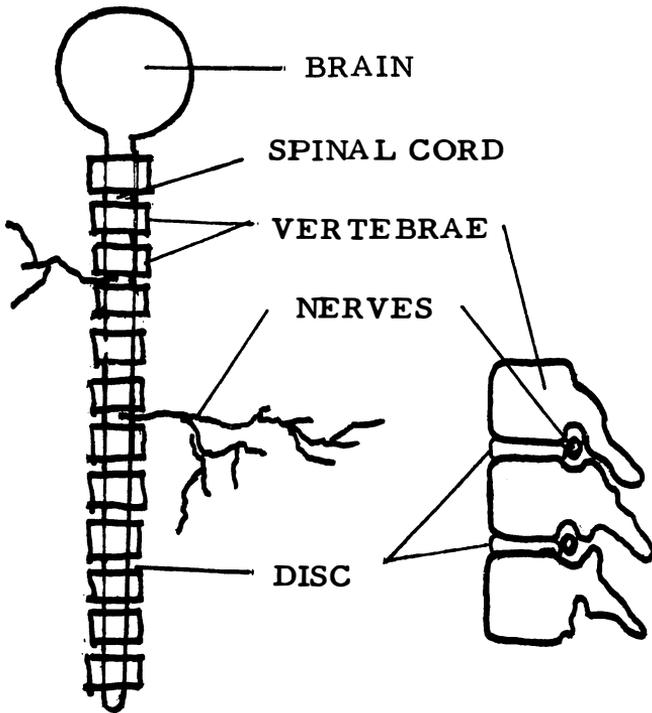

1. stimulate them (make them work faster)
2. inhibit them (make them work slower)
3. replace their function
4. take them out

why do we get sick?

Obviously, any intelligence that can take two cells and within 9 months create a perfect quadrillion cell living body cannot be fallable. Too, if every cell in your body is under the control of your brain at all times, they can't go wrong. We can rule out the fault being either of these two places, then.

Let's take a closer look at the communication between the brain and tissue cell now:

chiropractic

If you're like most people, you went to your Chiropractor only after having tried medicine to get you well. If so, the medical doctor tried treating your symptoms and your diseases, and failed to restore health. Please don't expect your Chiropractor to do what has already failed to work. What your Chiropractor will do is simple, yet the most important part of your health. He will completely examine your spine and determine where the nerve interference is. Your spine will then be charted to determine exactly which way each subluxated vertebra is twisted. This will enable your Chiropractor to decide the best way to return those vertebrae to their natural position, and eventually correct the nerve interference. This is done by a gentle "adjustment" of the vertebrae, by hand, which will enable the re-alignment of the subluxated vertebrae.

What to expect

By the time you learn of Chiropractic, you may have been getting sicker and sicker for years. In some people, 100% health may not be able to be attained. This is called the limitations of matter. (There isn't enough healthy tissue left to heal 100% of the damage). Remember though, it was (AND IS) the medical rejects that built Chiropractic to the fastest growing healing art it is. What your Chiropractor does will enable the following:

1. your body will heal to its best level, at its best pace.

2. If you accidently poison yourself (no matter how slight), nature will want to rid your body of the poison. The sudden symptoms are those of vomiting, fever, diarrhea, and profuse sweating: all signs that your body is working properly to get the poison out before damage can be done.

3. When you first start getting adjusted by your Chiropractor, your body will start functioning properly again to heal any damage. Your innate mind doesn't really care what symptoms are produced. Nature wants as much healing as quickly as possible, and if that healing process causes symptoms, there isn't anything that your Chiropractor can (or wants to) do about them.

who needs chiropractic?

Chiropractors are often asked if they would accept a cancer patient, or a heart attack victim, or if they can do anything for someone who has rheumatoid arthritis.

The fact is, all these people need a body free from nerve interference just as much as you do. Whether or not they can completely heal is impossible to say. By this stage of their health, they are asking for the right answer to a wrong question. Had they been Chiropractic patients all along, and had prevented these problems is the right question. Even if they can only hope to prevent that particular problem from getting worse and to prevent other problems is an indication that Chiropractic is in order.

Mommy wakes up and takes a stimulant (upper) to overcome the effects of the sleeping pill she took the night before. Little Johnny falls and skins his knee, so mommy sprays it with Bactine, iodine, etc. His sister gets a cough, so mommy gives her cough syrup. For a sore throat, a sore throat lozenge; for runny noses, a spray-in-the-nose drug; for a fever, aspirin. By this time mommy is hypertensive so she takes a tranquilizer. Just before daddy comes home she takes an upper again, and just before bed, out come the sleeping pills.

It has been proven on college campuses that children whose mothers take tranquilizers are TEN TIMES more prone to take illegal drugs. Children don't care what you say as much as they care what you do. So if you don't want them to take drugs, don't you take drugs.

One of the biggest problems we now have has recently been made a major classification in the International Classification of Diseases Code list. The problem is that of legal drugs and is called "iatrogenicity," which means "drug-caused diseases." If a bacteria or virus is confronted with a drug meant to destroy it, the organism will build up an immunity to that chemical (it will mutate to a stronger strain of germ or virus). The next time the mutant is involved in an infection, they discover a new drug to combat the new germ or virus. The organism then mutates again to a stronger strain and the cycle continues. If you've ever wondered where all these new flues are coming from, now you know.
